

From the Experts Educator Reflection

Lester W. Young, Jr. Ed. D.

- Is film a useful method for sharing the experiences of students with others? Why or why not?
- There are a number of young people featured in the Defining US films. Which ones do you think your students will identify with the most? What are the themes that your students will identify with among the films located on this site?
- Dr. Young discussed sitting down and asking "how do we change what is going on?" Where could you begin the discussion in your classroom and school? Who are the allies you have within your school or school system? What resources are available or what resources are needed?
